

HOBBLE TO JAIL NO MORE

John Harrington, Singular Individual with Wooden Limb, Dies Seeing Snakes.

FAMILIAR FIGURE IN THE POLICE COURT

Known to Officers by Soubriquet of "Peg Leg," He Has Been Housed by Them Every Cold Night for Years.

"Peg Leg" Harrington, one of the curious characters well known at the city jail, in the police court and in the city places besides, unexpectedly surrendered his claim to the hospitality of the police department Wednesday afternoon in the emergency room by dying. The patrol wagon brought "Peg Leg" to the station during the morning in a state of collapse from the effects of a prolonged spree. The "dead wagon" took him away in the afternoon to the morgue. It was to have been the ambulance, but there was a rush of business at the county hospital during the day, and when it came "Peg Leg's" turn for attention, he no longer had use for an ambulance. He was up to the hilt.

The last six days of "Peg Leg's" life was spent in the enjoyment of a solitary jag in a shed back of an employment agency at Eleventh and Farnam streets. Somehow he begged and hoarded enough nickels to purchase a week's supply of liquor. He then repaired to the shed and passed his time emptying flasks and trying to avoid discovery and arrest. The shed afforded little protection from the weather, and the nights have been cold. "Peg Leg" was without covering of any kind, but he was used to sleeping in the open air in all sorts and conditions of weather, and he managed to keep up a good circulation by dint of frequent application of stimulants. When the corn juice gave out "Peg Leg" began to be ill. Convulsions set in and friends who discovered his predicament notified the police. Dr. Ralph made an examination. Finding the man suffering from acute alcoholism he ordered him sent to the county hospital. The ambulance was in use all the morning and "Peg Leg" went without treatment. He was made comfortable on a cot in the emergency room and left pretty much to himself. About 2 o'clock, when Turney Kirk had occasion to enter the room, he discovered that "Peg Leg" was not breathing. A physician was hastily summoned, but the man was beyond the need of medical attendance.

There are peculiarities in "Peg Leg's" mode of existence, oddities of habit and personal appearance which made him interesting to read about but repulsive to see. He avoided soap and water like the plague and a man with more filthy clothing never applied at the police station for shelter. Rumor has it that "Peg Leg" was once an engineer on the Union Pacific railroad in prosperous circumstances. That was twelve years ago, shortly after coming here from the city of his birth and early youth, South Bend, Ind. In a freight wreck on the road two years later he lost one of his legs above the knee.

Those who are his friends now remember when he was a section hand about eight years ago. Their memories do not reach farther back. For the last few years "Peg Leg" has not been working at all. An artificial limb which he wore until sometime in 1897 became useless and had to be thrown away. Since then he has worn a limb of his own manufacture; hence his soubriquet. He was presented with a modern artificial limb last spring by the Associated Charities, but in a moment when the desire for drink was strong upon him, he pawned his new limb and resurrected the one of his own make. Friends helped him to redeem the limb, but in the weeks following it occupied a place in a pawnshop window often than it was attached to its owner's anatomy, and it is still "in stock."

In the dead of winter when the cold made hallways, empty freight cars and dry goods boxes unlivable, "Peg Leg" applied at the police station for shelter. When the officers became tired of officiating as his landlord and ordered him to find other lodgings, "Peg Leg" had recourse to making a bed in the snow in the path of some policeman patrolling his beat, and was invariably bundled off to the station in the patrol wagon to be thawed out. When the officers learned they had to either provide him with a bed or make a trip in the cold after him, they assigned "Peg Leg" a regular berth in a jail cell.

Late one night last fall when "Peg Leg" was searching for a resting place he had an exciting experience. Having stumbled across a shed at the rear of a dwelling he thought was unoccupied, he proceeded to pry open the door and make himself comfortable in David Kolmitz's kitchen, 1023 Farnam street. The family was asleep in an upstairs room. Mr. Kolmitz was awakened by Harrington's movements and supposed the noise was made by a burglar invading the premises, he tiptoed down the back stairway to the kitchen with a revolver in each hand.

Harrington, by the light of matches, was quietly ensconcing himself on an improvised bed of sack in a corner when Kolmitz tripped over a chair in the dark and fell against the partition. "Peg Leg" picked himself up and hurried out of the door through which he had entered. At that instant Kolmitz appeared at the other end of the kitchen, and catching sight of the intruder's flying figure, fired two shots after him. Harrington felt the bullets strike and woke the neighborhood by his yells. The police, who found him holding the end of the alley, placed him under arrest. At the station it was discovered that both bullets took effect in the beggar's wooden leg. When he recovered from the fright, "Peg Leg" created considerable amusement by protesting for the last with a profane flourish from one of the officers for the purpose.

"Peg Leg's" only relative are a sister and a brother. The brother is named George and is employed in the Union Pacific shops. The sister is said to be wealthy. Her home is in Grand Rapids, Mich. "Peg Leg's" last resting place will be the potter's field, and in the rough pine box with him will be buried the wooden peg which gave him a nickname.

OMAHA SHOWS MOST GAIN

Greatest Increase in Value of New Buildings Erected During August of This Year and Last.

Reports from the larger cities of the country on the amount of building done in August, 1899, and the same month of the previous year show that Omaha made a greater percentage of gain in this respect during the year ending September 1 than any other city. The returns for the first six months of the year 1899 do not show any increase, but on the contrary an apparent decrease, due to the great amount of money invested in buildings for the exposition last year. But the figures for the month of August just passed, which does not include anything but buildings erected for the normal residence and business demand, reveal the fact that Omaha is rapidly coming under the influence of the recovery in financial and business lines. The figures in the table subjoined show that the revival of the building trades came later than in some of the other cities, as returns for previous years show that the latter experienced their greatest revival previous to this year, hence their small percentages for this year. The upward trend of building still held good in the country as a whole, however, is shown by the fact that in the twenty leading cities the expenditures during August, 1899, were $18,172,707, as compared with $16,515,741 for the corresponding period of 1898, an increase of 10 per cent.

The number of buildings erected in the different cities and their total cost are shown in the following table:

	1899	1898	% Gain
Omaha	$1,712,707	$1,515,741	13.0
St. Louis	1,612,707	1,515,741	6.4
Chicago	1,512,707	1,415,741	7.0
New York	1,412,707	1,315,741	7.4
Philadelphia	1,312,707	1,215,741	8.1
Baltimore	1,212,707	1,115,741	9.0
San Francisco	1,112,707	1,015,741	9.8
Washington	1,012,707	915,741	10.9
Cleveland	912,707	815,741	11.7
Portland	812,707	715,741	13.1
San Antonio	712,707	615,741	15.6
San Diego	612,707	515,741	18.8
San Jose	512,707	415,741	23.3
San Bernardino	412,707	315,741	30.7
San Luis Obispo	312,707	215,741	44.5
San Gabriel	212,707	115,741	84.7
San Mateo	112,707	15,741	613.0
Total for twenty cities	$18,172,707	$16,515,741	10.0

Card of Thanks.

To the Military and Civil Organizations of Omaha and Council Bluffs and Citizens of both cities: We wish to give our most sincere thanks and to assure them that their kindness and sympathy will never be forgotten, for the many tokens of respect that were shown in various ways to our son and brother, Captain Lee Forby, at his funeral last Sunday. We can only say, we thank you. The death of a defender of his country brings out all the patriotism, sympathy and humanity of the American citizen, and never was it more fully displayed than at the death of our son and brother over five months ago, and at his funeral last Sunday. We wish to especially thank the firm of Burket & Dodder, undertakers, who volunteered their services, which were given in a kindly and very efficient manner. Also the services of Superintendent Calahan of Prospect Hill cemetery in arrangements on the grounds. And now—
"With the heroes who sleep on the hillsides
He lies with a flag at his head.
But stricken and blinded with weeping
His loved ones ever mourn for their dead."

Shave Yourself and use a STAR SAFETY RAZOR
This razor has been on the market for many years, has given such absolute and general satisfaction that it hardly seems necessary to call attention to the fact that it was the first safety razor that did not bore its name and was really what it professed to be, a "Safety Razor," which renders shaving an easy and convenient luxury and pleasure. Once tried, it will never be discarded, as it is simply perfection. Will be pleased to show it to you.
